

Making a your own BOOKCLOTH

MATERIALS

- A. THIN SHEET OF PAPER (You can use an A3 size)
- B. YOUR FAVOURITE FABRIC

Follow these instructions to make your own book cloth.

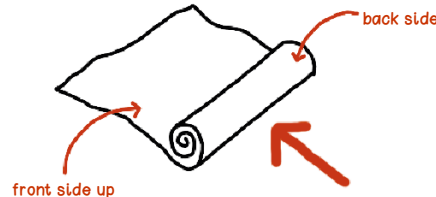

PS. The size of the paper should be the same or greater than the size of the fabric.

1. MOISTURE THE FABRIC

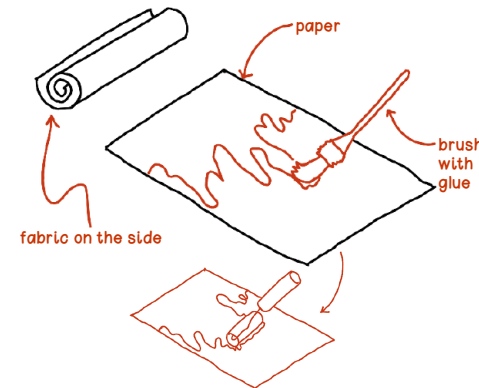

Use a spray bottle or sprinkle water on the back of the fabric while it's on a flat table.

You want the fabric moist so it does not suck the moisture of the paper and creates wrinkles in the end.*

2. ROLL THE FABRIC

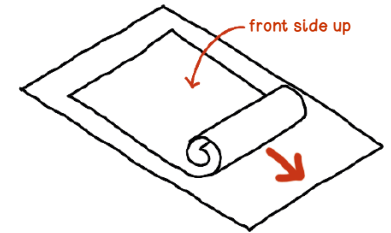

Turn the fabric so the front side is up. Then roll the fabric and set it to the side.

3. SPREAD GLUE ON PAPER

Open the sheet flat on the table and spread glue all over it, making sure the layer of glue you are applying is thin.

I use a small paint roller to make sure that the layer of glue is full and thin*

4. ROLL THE FABRIC OPEN

Roll the fabric on top of the sheet of paper filled with glue. Make sure to spread the glue all over, with the help of a bone folder. It's important to spread the glue on the entire surface of the fabric.

After that you can let the fabric dry somewhere flat.

In cases it becomes too wrinkled after all of this steps, I fix it with a hot iron press, to reactivate the glue and stretch the fabric.

5. PRESS AND LET IT DRY

I normally leave it under pressure using sheets of paper and something with light weight. This is so the glue sets in and the paper stops curling. After 30 minutes, or an hour, I let it dry with nothing on top for a while. When they are completely dry I storage them under weight for one or more days. I hope this goes well for you.
